The Canadian Canoe Museum seeks expressions of interest from the construction community for gift in-kind contributions to the new facility

Peterborough, ON, Wednesday, June 6, 2018 – The Canadian Canoe Museum is reaching out to the construction community for support in the form of gifts in-kind as a component of its capital campaign.

The museum is looking to identify potential partners in the construction community – trades, suppliers and contractors – who would like to support the new museum through the donation of services, labour and/or materials. A formal Expression of Interest has been issued in local newspapers and trade publications, and is available on the museum’s web site: <http://canoemuseum.ca/request-for-expression-of-interest-process/>

“The new museum has been inspired by its community, and this is one of the ways that we will involve the community as we move forward,” says Shirlanne Pawley-Boyd, Director of Philanthropy.

“Large-scale construction projects like this one rely on gifts in-kind and the support of businesses, small and large, to bring them to fruition. We look forward to hearing from those who are interested in joining us in this extraordinary endeavour.”

Gifts in kind could include an array of services, labour and materials, including but not limited to, concrete, carpentry, mechanical, electrical, plumbing, landscape, lumber, millwork, fixtures and furniture.

Responses to the EOI are due by July 16, 2018. Proposed gifts in-kind will be considered by the museum, its architects, engineers and specialist consultants.
